PREFACE.

THE following Calendar of Norwich Deeds enrolled from 1307 to 1341, is a continuation of a similar calendar compiled by the Rev. W. Hudson and myself for the period from 1285 to 1306, which was issued by the Norfolk and Norwich Archæological Society in 1903.

This continuation was compiled for the Corporation of Norwich by Miss Edith Crosse (now Mrs. MacKinnon), under the supervision of Mr. J. C. Tingey, F.S.A., the Hon. Archivist.

As both of them had left Norwich and as the MS. Calendar remained in the Castle un-indexed and practically unavailable to the public, I offered to print and index it at my own expense, and to write an introduction to it on the lines of that which I wrote for the first part, and my offer having been accepted by the Council of the City of Norwich, I proceeded with the work, and was about to issue it to subscribers, when it occurred to me that it would be better it should be issued to the members of the Norfolk and Norwich Archæological Society, so that they should have a continuation of the volume already issued to them.

I therefore made an arrangement with the Society to enable this to be done, and the result is now before my readers.

I must express the great obligations I am under to Mr. F. Johnson, the present Archivist, for the extreme care with which he has gone through the proofs of the present volume, and the minuteness with which he has examined my numerous queries as to suggested variorum readings, and to Mr. R. Howlett, F.S.A., for many very valuable corrections and suggestions.

The general excellence and accuracy of the following Calendar are so great that it may seem hypercritical on my part to differ from it in any way. Still I must say that in my opinion it would have been preferable to have set out the occupations of the parties in the original words of the deeds, whether Latin or English, and not to have translated them, e.g., tonsor is often translated as shearman or shearer, and this in many cases is right, but it is more than probable that some of the men so called were barbers, which is the primary meaning of the word.

Again the calendarers have spelt the name Scoter throughout as Stoter. No one knows better than I the practical difficulty in distinguishing the c from the t in the hand of the period, but I think there can be little doubt that the name is a variant of Scouthere, leather dresser, as given by Mr. Hudson (on p. 16 of the previous part), and of Scoudere (which appears in pt. 2 of such part), and this enables us to correct the place name given as Stondhergate, which is clearly an error for Scoudhergate. I have not altered the reading in the text but have given full cross references in the index.

Another point is that Mr. Hudson, and the present calendarers, as well as Mr. le Strange, in his list of Norwich Bailiffs, have thought the place name variously read Gonthorpe or Gouthorpe to be the present Gowthorpe, but I consider it is more probably Gonthorpe for Gunthorpe. My reasons for so doing are that Gowthorpe is only a manor in Swardeston (see Bl. Norf. V. p. 49), which was usually called Galthorp Hall and is said to be in Intwood, whereas Gunthorpe is an important village.

Moreover in pt. i., p. 29, the name of Ralph Avenel of Gunethorp is mentioned as occurring in Norwich, and here the parish is certainly Gunthorp by Holt, as the Avenels were long settled there. The point is of great interest to Chaucerians, as de Gunthorp was one of the by-names of Chaucer, and I will deal with it more at length at the end of my preface.

There are certain other points arising from the similarity—one might almost say identity—of the letters c and t and u and n, which I fear will never be resolved with certainty. Among other doubtful readings must be Golvard or Golnard, Saudi or Sandi, Keuinge or Keninge, Flathe or Flache, Lytherwyne or Litherwyve or Lycherwyve, Enges or Euges[1], and so on. Perhaps the only safe way is to index names like these under both readings.

Take again, the name continually spelt Ymme. On p. 32 we find it as Yumme, which would seem to show that the 'minims' went wrong, and we get a clue to the reading from the pronunciation.

It may be convenient if in this preface I follow the order in which in the last part I drew attention to some of the most noteworthy things disclosed by the Calendar.

There I mentioned a Norwich bell founder, John de Rudham, 'campanarius,' in 1290, nearly a century before the earliest mentioned by John L'Estrange in his book on Norfolk Bells. Now I can supplement this by the occurrence in this part of two more belleyeters, Robert le Belleyetere in 1313 p. 47, who appears as Robert de Walpole in 1317 and 1322, and Alan, son of Richd. Poche of Preston, called the Belleyeter, dwelling in Norwich in 1315[2].

To the surgeons (5), apothecaries (2), and medical men, new to the late Mr. C. Williams, our local medical authority, which I mentioned in the first part. I can now add two[3] physicians and nine more apothecaries, viz:—

Edmund de Belaghe, physician, pp. 5, 23, 113, 126.
John de Ingham, 'ypothecary,' pp. 10 and 19.
Hervey de Hapesburgh, 'ypothecary,' p. 52.
John de Scothowe, 'ypothecary,' pp. 116, and 117.
John de Oxford, 'ypothecary,' p. 119, and Philip de Oxford, p. 188.
John de Paston, citizen and apothecary of London, pp. 148 and 218.

[1] It is probably Engis, nr. Liège.

[2] The series of Enrolled Deeds which give the names of the three earliest Norwich bellfounders was very well known to L'Estrange, but, being then wholly unindexed, he unluckily missed the entries.

[3] The 'Apothecaria' in the Market is mentioned on p. 142.

Robert West of Earlham, apothecary, p. 164; no doubt the man afterwards called Robt. de Erlham, pp. 176, 207, and 208; and possibly brother of Ralph de Erlham, p. 177.
Wm. de Felton, physician, p. 170.
Nichs. de Kirkby, apothecary, pp. 180, 189, and 203.
Wm. de Kirkby, apothecary, p. 189.
John de Beyton, apothecary, pp. 207 and 213.

The 'painters' and 'pictors' in this part are:—
Roger le Peyntour, for whose testament in 1311 see p. 4.
Roger de Staunford was dwelling here in 1318, and Stephen le Peyntour was of Swannington, p. 307.
Roger de Beston, luminator, p. 137, is elsewhere Roger le Lomynour, p. 127.
Peter the Imaginer, p. 211, is no doubt the man who made the images for the Church, though Ducange says that imaginarii were sorcerers.

The woad industry is represented in 1310-11 by John, son of Thorald le Weyder, of Norwich, p. 27.

The names of early clergy (of which I gave 24 instances in the last part which do not appear in Blomefield) are very numerous, and a careful collection of the names which occur in this part would no doubt greatly add to our knowledge of the parsons of the past, e.g., in Norwich alone we learn that the Geoffrey de Snitterley, rector of St. Bartholomew, Ber Street, was also called Geoffrey Chori (p. 95); that John atte Crouch, given by Blomefield as parson of St. John Maddermarket, was probably only the father of Roger the real parson (pp. 206, 216), and that Alan the rector of St. Peter Hungate was otherwise called Alan de Markishale (p. 57).

In the first calendar (pref. p. iii.) I noted 16 instances of married women who kept their own names after marriage between 1285 and 1303.

From the following pages I can now add 12 others, viz.:—
Master Adam de Tottington and Agnes Peche his wife, pp. 2 and 7.

Robt. de Yelverton and Agnes Crede his wife, p. 30.
Tho. Spurel (Sporel) and Lettice de Howe his wife, pp. 44 and 124.
Robt. de Fretone and Clarina Sket, p. 44.
Hugh de Ersham and Hughelina de Hippeworth, pp. 51 and 52.
Edith de Todenham, with consent of her husband, Henry Qwytside, p. 53.
Cath. atte Carme, widow of Nichs. de Horstead, p. 71.
Hy. le Blowere and Kath. Wylunger, p. 81.
Rob. de Wytton and Matilda de Wreningham, p. 83.
Jno. de Rameseye and Agnes Pycot, p. 100.
Regd. de Knapton and Isabel Blackbird, p. 133.
Margt. Lyndraper, widow of Ran. de Saxlingham, p. 144.

If, as I hope we shall, we ever have a continuation of these Calendars, we shall probably find that the custom died out soon after.

The early occurrence of foreigners mentioned on p. 4 of the previous Calendar is continued. Its magnitude has been doubted by no less an authority than Mr. Tingey, who could only detect 21 instances of this in the Lete Roll of 1375, and 25 in that of 1391 (Select City Records).

I cannot conveniently check these statements as the Lete Rolls have not yet been printed, but I think he must have meant to refer only to the Flemish who settled after the invitation to them of 1338.

In the present Calendar of Norwich Deeds, 1307-1341, at least a hundred names occur which seem to me foreign, and in the following list I have not included any Norman names or any trade or personal names like le Brun, le Gris, etc., which may have been used by Englishmen. On the other hand, foreigners coming to a strange country would often naturally drop their old patronymics and assume trade names like le Weyder or place names like de Costiseye (e.g., Estavin de Costiseye, p. 22).

I do not say that all the names mentioned below are of foreigners, but I think that quite 100 of them are. Some 24 of these speak for themselves, e.g., de Arderne, John de Beaupenye merchant of Amiens, de Belgrave, de Brabant, le Bretun, de Bruges, de Burdeaus, Costinople, Depe (Dieppe ?), Enges (probably Engis near Liège), le Fleming, Lile, Faunceys de Frisseland, Holaund (this may be from Lincolnshire), Labataille, de Limbery (Limburg), Lumbard, Miniot, Morevile, de Norweye, de Pares, Picard, de Spanie, de St. Omer, Tuscoynz, des Ys. Those to which * is prefixed occur in the Calendar of 1285-1306.

The Enrolments of Testaments, which in the previous part (intro. p. v.) only reached 11 from 1285 to 1306 have in this period (1307-1341) increased so rapidly—there are over 50 mentioned in this part—that space cannot be found for a list, though I think it would be as well, at some future time, to print abstracts of the whole, as they would form a most valuable contribution to Norwich history at a time when the 'wills' enrolled in the Ecclesiastical Courts are scanty, late—(1370 is the earliest)—and extremely ill cared for by the authorities[1]. Some of the most important are those of Roger le Mareschal; John Stanford, chaplain; Katherine, anchoress of St. Margaret of Newebrigge; Lettice, widow of Ralph de Morle; Lettice Payn, the well-known benefactor; Clement, vicar of St. Stephen's; Joan, widow of Sir Robt. de Caston; Margery, widow of Henry Cat of Hevingham; Gilbert Lamberd, rector of Alderford; and Sir Roger de Borne or Bourne.

[1] This may be the same as Em.

The list of 26 Norman names which I gave in the last part, covering 1285-1306, is longer than those I can find in this (1307-1341), which come to 21 only, but this may partly be accounted for by my first list improperly including names like le Gris, le Gros, and le Marshall.

The new names which appear are Argentein, Bavent, Bigoth, Champayn, Colvell, Courzon, Foliot, Gyny, Mountfort, and Reymes.

Of the knightly class who held property in the City (p. 6), possibly as residential 'inns' or 'hotels,' there is a considerable increase to 29, as against the 8 who occur in the previous Calendar (1285-1306), for I find in the present one (1307-1341):—

Giles de Argentum of St. Martin Coslany, p. 41.
Sir Tho. Bavent of All Saints Swinemarket and Newgate Parva, pp. 132, 191.
Sir William Bernake of St. Peter Mancroft, p. 206.
Richd. son of Sir Jno. de Biskele of Conesford, p. 134.
Sir Roger de Bourne (Burne) of St. Giles, p. 190.
Sir John Boyland of St. Giles, p. 190.
John de Boys of St. Martin Coslany, p. 173.
Sir John le Bretun of Conesford (testament), p. 29.
Joan, wife, and Alice, dau., of Sir Rob. Burgonium of St. Martin Coslany, p. 173.

[1] The Prerogative Court of Canterbury Wills do not begin till 1383. Of course the earliest in England are the Wills enrolled in the Court of Hustings of London, which begin 1258. Lincoln followed in 1271, and Norwich, which in most things followed the customs of London, began the enrolments in 1285.

Sir Gregory de Castello of St. Simon and Jude, p. 173.
Joan, widow of Sir Robt. de Catteston of St. James, p. 27.
Edmund, son of (Sir) Edwd. Charles of St. Miles, Conesford, p. 152.
Lady Margaret Foliot of St. Peter Mancroft, p. 77.
Sir Wm. de Fransham—Geoff. his son, pp. 145, 152—of St. Peter Mancroft, St. Simon and Jude, Cooks Row of Fibrig, and St. Miles, Conesford.
Wm., son of Sir Roger de Gyney of St. Mary Coslany, p. 153.
Sir Wm. Gyney of Dilham of St. Mary Coslany, p. 186.
Alice, widow of Sir Roger de Hales of St. Vedast, p. 42.
Sir Simon de Hethersett of St. Clement, Conesford, p. 158.
Sir Bartholomew, son of Sir Wm. de Hethill, of St. Geo. Colegate, p. 10.
Lady Emma de Holdagh of St. Giles, p. 42.
Sir Richd. Lew of St. Martin at Hill, p. 139.
Geoffrey, son of Sir Roger Minyot of Gt. Newgate, p. 77.
Margt., widow of Sir Hubert de Multon of St. Clement, Conesford, p. 189.
Peter, son of Sir Wm. de Nereford of St. John, Ber Street, p. 147.
Sir Walter de Norwich, his widow Katherine, of St. Augustine (3), St. Margt. Fybrigg, St. Stephen (2), St. Martin Coslany, Heigham (2), pp. 139, 150, 191, and 221.
Isabel, widow of Hugh de Reymes of Overstrand, of St. Augustine, p. 166.
Sir Tho. Roseclyn and his sister Lady Margery de Chaumpayn (Rocelyn Staithe was near the Stone Bridge in St. Vedast (?) Norwich), p. 85.
Sir Tho. St. de Omer of St. Etheldreda, p. 81.
Sir John Sturny of St. Stephen's, p. 132.
Sir John de Thorp of St. Miles, Conesford, p. 41.
Matilda, widow of Sir Robt. de Thony, of Conesford, p. 216.

Conesford (King Street, etc.) would seem to have been the fashionable part, as it occurs nine times, and its neighbour St. Vedast twice to Coslany's six.

To the trade names mentioned by Mr. Hudson on pp. xii., et seq., of the first part, may now be added others which occur in this.

They are interesting as showing the sub-divisions of trade which were rapidly being made soon after 1306:—

Bellyeter.
Blowere.
Bocarius.
Bridylsmyt.
Capper.
Carder.
Cottemaker.
Fishman for fishmonger.
Fruter for fruiterer.
Gaunter.
Girdeler.
Glazier-Verier.
Glaswryte.
Harper.
Hatter.
Hirdeler.
Horner.
Imaginer.
Lekman.
Lepmaker.[1]
Luminator.
Malemaker.
Minstrel.
Mustarder.
Painter.
Saltman.
Tablotter.
Tallowmonger.
Taverner.
Upholder.
Wafrer.
Waxmonger.

Among the interesting items to be found in the following pages is a reference on p. 134 to a creditor in 1326 taking advantage of the Statute of Acton Burnel (1283), which ordained the statute merchant, by seizing the messuage of Hervye de Hapesburgh, a spicer of Norwich, as security for a debt of £6.

Happisburgh may be the German Hapsburg and not our Norfolk coast village.

There is an early instance of a separation deed in 1314 (pp. 51, 52) whereby Hugh de Ersham is bound to Hughelina de Hippeworth (apparently his wife) in corn, barley, and wood, to be paid annually for life, and also grants her a reasonable support in meat, drink, clothing, and attendance.

The foundation deed of the well-known Chantry of Lettice Payne is referred to in p. 72, and her testament soon after, p. 80.

[1] Probably an error for skep maker.

The purchase of many of the sites for friars and monks alike, may be traced here, and the deeds are most valuable to the future compiler of a Norwich Monasticon, e.g., by the Prior and Friars Carmelites, p. 186; by the Friars Preachers, pp. 23, 41, and 109; by St. Giles Hospital, p. 77; by the Hospital of St. Mary Magdalen, p. 84; and by Horsham St. Faiths, p. 129.

The old forms of fishman and fruter for the present fishmonger and fruiterer are curious, and the fact that a 'fishman' was called Thos. Samoun in 1319 (p. 90) may point to salmon being then caught in our river, as indeed they certainly were till much later.

Roger Weylond, smith, (p. 77), is a curious coincidence, if indeed Walter Scott did not take the smith in Kenilworth from a Norwich surname, for there really is no end to Scott's out-of-the-way knowledge.

Perhaps the most puzzling entry is that on p. 202, when in 1336 'John Cycestr Rey ferraunt armorum' and Joan his wife bought property in Fibriggate. A little later (p. 213) he is described as John Rey 'ferraunt d'armes.'

In a later deed, dated just 100 years after, in 1435, a Wm. Ry of Norwich, smith, also had to do with property in Fibriggate.

Earlier than this John le Ferroun of London, occurs in the Hustings Wills there of 1277-8 (p. 37) as having a brother Alexr. le Ferroun of Ipswich, and Hugh le Ferrour occurs in 1302-3 in the Feudal Aids of Bucks.

The word 'Ferroun' is taken by Dr. Reginald Sharpe to be the same as Ferour (London Letter Book B 202, etc.), and in the same Calendar a Hamo le Ferrun was witness to a deed of Andrew le Armurer in 1285. It occurs first in Norwich when Walter le Ferun was of St. Peter Mancroft in 1290 (i. p. 31). In 1306 Wm. Feraunt of 'Schthingge' (Seething?), chaplain, had to do with property in St. Geo. Colegate and the Market (i. pp. 116, 117, ii. p. 1). Later than the debatable entry, John Feraunt was a surety in an action relating to Shipden, Norfolk (London Letter Book H, p. 273), and was a mercer in Coleman Street in 1379.

It is not impossible that the John Cycestre of the deed was the John Cycestre, assessed in London in 1345 (Letter Book F, p. 152) who was a London goldsmith in 1351, alderman in 1358, and Mayor in 1369.

Dr. J. H. Round wrote me that 'Rey Ferraunt, which would have been good French for King Ferdinand, which made me think that your man might be some early King of Arms, but I cannot find him anywhere.' I had already made a guess to the same effect, thinking the ferraunt might have been a misreading for herraut, but reference to the original shows this is not the case. It may be remembered(see introduction to my Short Calendar of Norwich Deeds, p. iv.) that in 1470 a King's herald called Chester came before the Mayor and certified facts in a commercial case, but he was John Walter, Chester Herald, and he was 124 years later.

I think that the explanation given me by Mr. R. Howlett, F.S.A., that 'Rey ferraunt armorum' or Rey 'ferraunt d'armes' simply means King's or army farrier, is the real one, for ferrant marèchal is good modern French for farrier.

An analysis and perfect list of the Christian or fore names which occur here and in the preceding part is a desideratum. Its compilation would be a useful work for the younger generation of local antiquaries, rather than hashing and rehashing other men's work.

There is much to be found out by analysing these dry indexes, e.g., our common local surname Preston is often a corruption of Prestessone or priest's son, and have nothing to do with any imaginary Lancashire ancestor, except where it occurs to the bellyeter of Preston, p. 62.

The female names deserve special comparison. Unusual instances of them which I have noted are Gemma,[1] p. 3; Ivetta, pp. 25 and 88; Bletha or Bleda, pp. 43, 68, 85, and 97; Yimme p. 46; Goda, pp. 49 and 175; Mazelina, pp. 56 and 127; Gabina (probably an error for Galiena), p. 62; Etheldreda pp. 67 and 187; Valeriana p. 95; Gumida p. 95; Ethe, p. 96; and Ascilia, p. 203.

I will conclude my preface with a more detailed investigation of the Gouthorpe-Gonthorpe question than I could give before, without unduly breaking the thread of my discourse.

[1] Dante married Gemma Donati, so the name is probably Italian.

It is difficult to see how the misreading Gouthorpe or Gowthorpe for Gonthorpe arose. As before pointed out the former is only the name of a little manor in Swardeston, often spelt Galthorpe, and is not likely to have given its name to Norwich citizens.

It is, moreover, only a recent heresy, for Blomefield (vol. iii., p. 75) throughout spells the bailiff's name Gunthorpe, and Kirkpatrick (p. 104) correctly calls him John de Gonthorp.

It probably arose from the continuator of Blomefield (vol. ix., p. 66) saying that the parson presented to Setchey by Tho. Bardolf in 1307 was called John de Gouthorpe.

But John de Gonthorpe, the bailiff in 1299, called his brother Stephen de Gunthorpe, which by no possibility could have been a misreading for Gouthorpe or Gowthorpe.

Moreover, the first time we find the place mentioned in Norwich records is when Ralph de Avenel of Gunthorpe is mentioned in 1289-90 (2), and we know that the Avenels were of Gunthorpe by Holt.

Mr. Hudson, followed by Mr. le Strange, however, fell into the trap laid for him by Blomefield's continuator, and calls the bailiff John de Gowthorp in 1300-1 (vol. i., p. 34), but this misreading is not repeated in his index where he calls him de Gouthorp, which of course may be de Gonthorp.

Again, he refers to Ranulph de Gouthorpe in 1288 (vol. ii., p. 363), but this man was clearly Ralph (Avenel) de Gonthorpe, who held St. Miles, Coslany, and on p. 378 his Tho. de Gouthorp is probably the Thos. (Avenel) de Gonthorp who was living in 1289-90.

The point would be of little consequence had it not been for Chaucer's apparent connection with Gunthorpe by Holt, and so with Jno. de Gonthorpe, the bailiff of Norwich in 1299, who had to do with the Sefouls, whose name occurs at the Holt village.

The real point to consider is whether the Robert de Gunthorp, alias le Chaucer of London, was connected with the Gunthorpe near Holt, or the Gouthorpe or Gowthorpe near Norwich. I do not know that it matters very much, however, for whether he was from one or the other he would still be of Norfolk parentage.

The name of Gonthorpe or Gouthorpe appears in our Norwich enrolled deeds first, as follows. (It will be more convenient to refer here to the place which is so variantly read by its initial only).

The best test throughout what follows is the question whether the place names or other information tend to connect the person with the Gunthorpe by Holt, or the Gowthorp manor in Swardeston:—

(1) 1288, p. 21. Hugh, son of Thos. Smith of G., and Sibella his wife, to Wm. de Hunworth, smith, in St. Stephen.
(2) 1289-90, p. 29. Ralph Avenel of G., to Thos. his son, in St. Peter Mancroft.
(3) 1295, p. 56. John de Saham, skinner, and Matilda his wife, formerly wife of Ralph le Sponere, to John de G., clerk, in Nedham Street.
(4) 1297, p. 62. John de Reppes, alutarius, and Helewisia his wife, to John de G., clerk, in Nedham Street.
(5) 1299, p. 73. Wm., son of Clement Mayn, and Agnes his wife, to Stephen, son of Ranulph de G., in St. Miles Coslany.
(6) 1299, p. 75. John de G., clerk, citizen of Norwich, to his brother Stephen de G., alutarius, in the Market.
(7) 1300, p. 76. John de G. was bailiff.

Here we see in No. 1 a smith from the debatable locality, doing business with another smith who comes from Hunworth, which immediately adjoins the Gunthorpe by Holt. In No. 2 we identify the same Gunthorpe by Holt through Avenel being of that place. John de Gonthorpe the bailiff of 1300 is clearly the clerk of No. 3 and No. 4, and in No. 5 we find him transferring to Stephen, son of Ranulph de G., who we know from No. 6 was 'alutarius.' Ranulph de G. was probably the Ralph Avenel (No. 2).

(8) 1301, p. 81. John de G. bought of John, son of Mille the tanner, and Agnes his wife, in St. Martin Coslany, Gildencroft.
(9) 1301, p. 85. John de G., described as pelliparius (skinner), and his wife Matilda, sell to John, son of John de Morlee, in Peter of Southgate.
(10) 1301-2, p. 89. John de G. and Alan Sefuyl occur together in a deed. (The Sefoul arms are quartered on a font at Gunthorpe).
(11) 1303, p. 95. John de G., again bailiff.
(12) 1304, p. 97. Ditto.
(13) 1305, p. 100. Ditto.

(16) 1306, p. 114. John de G. had grant in the Market for Hugh Garzoun of Heydon, and Margt. his wife. (Heydon is in the Holt district).

Part 2.

(17) 1307, p. 1. John de G., bailiff.
(18) 1307, p. 1. John de G. buys in St. Miles Coslany of Hy. de Amringhall of Norwich, dyer, and Mary his wife.
(19) 1308-9, p. 8. Stephen de G. buys in St. Geo. before the Gates, of Roger de Tuddenham and Isabel his wife. (Here the spelling kept the Calendarer right, so this identifies the Stephen in Nos. 5 and 6).
(20) 1308, p. 9. John de G., bailiff.
(21) 1308, p. 10. John de G. buys in St. Sepulchre of Roger Fleghe, butcher, of Trowse, and his wife Alice.
(22) 1309-10, p. 15. Testament of William de G.
(23) 1309-10, p. 19. Emma, widow of John de G., and Stephen (see 15) her son, buys of Roger and Brice, sons of Gervase de Gimmingham, in St. Miles Coslany (see pp. 8, 15, and 18).

(24) 1309-10, p. 20. Emma, widow of John de G., and Margaret his dau., buy in St. John Maddermarket of Walter le Caux.
(25) 1311, p. 29. Stephen de G. transfers to Robt. Martyn and Margery his wife, in St. Crouch. (Possibly the Margery is the Margt. of No. 24).
(26) 1321-2, p. 104. Stephen, s. and h. of John de G., late of Norwich, to Richd. English, fishman, in St. John Maddermarket.
(27) 1330, p. 156. Ralph de G., in St. Clement, from Andrew, son of Peter le Mauner.
(28) 1332, p. 174. Ditto.
(29) 1335-6, p. 189. Ditto, from Alice, widow of Peter le Mauner.
(30) 1335-6, p. 189. Ditto, from Andrew.
(31) 1335-6, p. 189. Ditto, from Margt.
(32) 1336, p. 202. Ditto in St. Miles Conesford, Trowse Newton and Whitlingham, from Alice, Andrew, and Margt. le M.
(33) 1338, p. 216. Ditto and Matilda his wife, to Thos. But in St. Andrew Fibrigg.
(34) 1338, p. 216. Ditto from Andrew, son and h. of Peter le Mauner, in St. Miles Conesford, Trowse N., and Whitlingham.

Of the 22 cases in which the debatable name occurs, either as a surname or place name, in my Calendar of Norfolk Fines, 17 of them clearly relate to Gunthorp near Holt, as I can prove if necessary.

In four or five cases only the name or place which I have spelt Gonthorp in my Calendar of Fines should I think be read Gouthorpe, as they all seem to relate to a group of places in or near it. Of these the clearest case is when in 1407-8 it is actually spelt Gowethorp.

14 Ed. I. (1285-6), p. 134. Wm. fil. Richd. de Dunston, Tho. fil. Jno. de Nareford, Wm. fil. Richd. de G., Wm. fil. Nichs. de Dunston, and Tho. fil. Hugh de Framingham Parva, and John, Abbot of St. Edmund's, of manor of Castre. (This I must admit should probably have been read Richd. de Gouthorp).

(19) 24 Ed. I. (1295-6), p. 147. John de G. of Norwich, v. Richd. le Clerk of Swardeston, and Isabella his wife, by John de Shotesham in Swardeston and Ingwode.

(20) 14 Ed. II. (1320-1), p. 260. Richd. Cole of Norwich, v. Wm. fil. Jno. le Munk of G., and Isabella his wife, in G., Mulkebarton, Sweynsthorp, Dunston, Swerderston, Mangreen, Merfield, Intwood, and Keswick. A Gregory le Moigne of London and Gowthorp was admitted in 1310. The place names are the same as on p. 395 post, so I think that here Gowthorpe was meant.

(21) 19 Ric. II. (1395-6), p. 387. Sir Edm. de Thorp, Jno. Reymes, Hugh atte Fen, Jno. Danyel, and Walter Nythe, v. Jno. de Dunston, and Matilda his wife, in Dunston, Mangreen, G., Sweynsthorp, Merkeshale, Intwood, and Crouchestoke, and the advowson of a ¼ of Porlond Parva. (This is probably Gowthorp, p. 395, for the place names are same as on pp. 395, 343).

(22) 9 Hy. IV. (1407-8), p. 395. Richd. Purdaunce, citizen of Norwich, and others, and Robt. Stalon do., in Swardeston, Mangreen, G., Keswick, Markeshale, Dunston, Kenyngham, Mulbarton, Swainsthorpe, E. Carlton, and Intwood. (This is certainly the Gowthorp als. Galthorpe).

I am sorry to have taken up so much space on the matter, but in the interests of local history the mistake should be put right.

WALTER RYE.
